Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty, by

S. S. PELOUBET,

In the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington.

Rec. Apr. 26, 1880

PREFACE.

THE purpose of this work is to collect in a small compass, all the principal Legal Maxims in Law and Equity which are found scattered through the various law-books, and giving under each an approved English translation.

It is intended for the student preparing for the bar, and for the practicing lawyer, who may desire to find a maxim which will apply to, and illustrate, the case before him.

Where a maxim has been found to have been used in various forms, by transposing the words, care has been taken to use only one form, thus avoiding the duplication of similar maxims

[iii]

Use has been made of the several collections of Legal Maxims heretofore published, but, so far as possible, reference has been made to the authority where the maxim may be found, and the connection in which it was used.

The work contains a full index, which will enable the student to find any maxim upon the subject desired.

NEW YORK, April 10, 1880.

LEGAL MAXIMS.

A.

1. A communi observantia non est recedendum. (COKE, LITT. 186. a.)—Common observance is not to be departed from.

2. A digniori fieri debet denominatio et resolutio. (WING. 265.)—The title and exposition ought to be made from that which is most worthy.

3. A facto ad jus non datur consequentia.
A fact does not necessarily constitute a right.

4. A latere ascendit jus. (BRACT. 20.)—A right ascends collaterally.

5. A l'impossible nul n'est tenu. (2 BOU. 116.)—No one is bound to do what is impossible.

6. A non posse ad non esse sequitur argumentum necessario negative, licit non affirmative. (HOB. 336.)—If a thing be not possible, an argument in the negative may be deduced, namely, that it has no existence ; but an argument in the affirmative cannot be deduced, namely, that if a thing is possible it is in existence.

7. A piratis aut latronibus capti liberi permanent. (DIG. 49. 15. 19. 2.)—Things do not change their ownership when captured by pirates and robbers.

8. A principalioribus seu dignioribus est inchoandum. (COKE, LITT. 18.)—We should begin with the principal and most worthy parts.

9. A rescriptis valet argumentum. (COKE, LITT. 11. a.)—An argument drawn from rescripts is sound.

10. A summo remedio ad inferiorem actionem, non habetur ingressus, neque auxilium. (FLETA LIB. 6. c. 1.)—From the highest remedy to a lower action there is neither ingress nor assistance.

11. A verbis legis non est recedendum. (5. COKE, 118.)—From the words of the law there is no receding.

12. Ab alio expectes, alteri quod feceris. (P. SYRUS, 1.)—Expect from others the same treatment that they receive from you.

13. Ab assuetis non fit injuria. (JENK.

CENT. 8.)—No injury is done by things long acquiesced in.

14. Abbreviationum ille numerus et sensus accipiendus est, ut concessio non sit inanis. (9 COKE, 48.)—In abbreviations, that number and sense is to be taken by which the meaning is not rendered void.

15. Absentem accipere debemus eum qui non est eo loci in quo petitur. (DIG. 50. 16. 199.)—We must call him absent who is not in that place in which he is sought.

16. Absentia ejusqui reipublicæ causa abest, neque ei neque alii damnosa esse debet. (DIG. 50. 17. 140.)—The absence of him who is employed in the service of the State, ought not to be prejudicial to him nor to others.

17. Absoluta sententia expositione non indiget. (2 INST. 533.)—An absolute sentence needs no exposition.

18. Absolutum dominium in omnibus licitis.—Absolute power in all things lawful.

19. Absurdum est affirmare (re judicata) credendum esse, non judici. (12 COKE, 25.)—It is absurd to affirm that the record of judgment is to be relied upon, and not the judge.

20. Abundans cautela non nocet. (11 COKE, 6.)—Abundant caution does no injury.

21. Accessorium non ducit, sed sequitur suum principale. (COKE, LITT. 152 a.)—An accessory does not lead, but follows his principal.

22. Accessorium sequitur naturam rei cui accedit. (COKE, LITT. 152.)—The incident follows the nature of the thing to which it is accessory.

23. Accessorius sequitur naturam sui principalis. (3 INST. 139.)—An accessory follows the nature of its principal.

24. Accipere quid ut justitiam facias, non est tam accipere quam extorquere. (LOFFT, 72.)—To accept anything as a reward for doing justice, is not accepting but extorting.

25. Accusare nemo se debet, nisi coram Deo. (HARD. 139.)—No one is bound to accuse himself, except before God.

26. Accusator post rationabile tempus non est audiendus, nisi se bene de cmissione excusaverit. (MOORE, 817.)—An accuser should not be heard after a reasonable time has expired, unless he can account satisfactorily for the delay.

27. Acta exteriora indicant interiora secreta. (8 COKE, 146.)—External actions show the secret intentions.

28. Actio casus apud nostrates ea est, qua ut inter bonos bene agere oporteat, et sine fraudatione. (LOFFT, 623.)—In pleading a cause among our countrymen we should act fairly as becomes good men, and not defraud anyone.

29. Actio contra defunctum coepta continuatus in hæredes. (HOB. 103.)—An action against a deceased person continues in the heirs.

30. Actio est jus prosequendi in judicio quod alicui debetur. (COKE, LITT. 285. a.)—An action is the right of prosecuting to judgment that which is one's due.

31. Actio non datur non damnificato. (JENK. CENT. 69.)—An action is not given to him who is not injured.

32. Actio non facit reum, nisi mens sit rea. (LOFFT, 37)—An action does not make one guilty, unless the intention be bad.

33. Actio pœnalis in hæredem non datur, nisi forte ex damno locupletior hæres factus sit. (VIN. COM. 756.)—A penal action does not lie against the heir, unless indeed the heir is benefited from the wrong.

34. Actio personalis moritur cum persona. (4 INST. 315.)—A personal action dies with the person.

35. Actio quælibet in sua vita. (JENK. CENT. 77.)—Every action proceeds in its own way.

36. Actiones compositæ sunt, quibus inter se homines disceptarent, quas actiones, ne populus prout vellet institueret, certas solemn- esque esse voluerunt. (WHART. 20.)—Actions are disposed by which men dispute among themselves, which actions are made definite and solemn, lest the people proceed as they think proper.

37. Actiones in personam, quæ adversus eum intenduntur, qui ex contractu vel delicto obligatus est aliquid dare vel concedere. (WHART. 20.)—Personal actions are those which are brought against him who, from a contract or a tort, is obliged to give or allow something.

38. Actionum genera maxime sunt servanda. (LOFFT, 460.)—The correct form of action should be followed.

39. Actionum quædam sunt in rem, quædam in personam, et quædam mixtæ. (COKE, LITT. 284.)—Some actions are against the thing, others against the person, and others are mixed.

40. Actor qui contra regulam quid aduxit, non est audiendus. (2 BOUV. 116.)—A pleader should not be heard who advances a proposition, contrary to rules of law.

41. Actor sequitur forum rei. (HOME. L. T., 232.)—The plaintiff follows the forum of the thing in question.

42. Actore non probante reus absolvitur. (HOB. 103.)—The defendant is absolved if the plaintiff does not prove his case.

43. Acts indicate the intention. (8 COKE, 291).

44. Actori incumbit onus probandi. (HOB. 103.)—The burden of proof lies with the plaintiff.

45. Actus curiæ neminem gravabit. (JENK. CENT. 118.)—An act of the court injures no one.

46. Actus Dei nemini facit injuriam. (2 BLACK. COM. 122.)—An act of God injures no one.

47. Actus inceptus, cujus perfectio pendet voluntate partium, revocari potest; si autem pendet ex voluntate tertie personæ, vel excontingenti, revocari non potest. (BACON.)—An act already begun, the completion of which depends upon the parties, may be recalled; but, if it depend on the consent of a third person, or on a contingency, it cannot.

48. Actus judiciarius coram non iudice irritus habetur; de ministeriali autem a quocunque provenit ratum esto. (LOFFT, 458.)—A judicial act done in excess of authority is not binding; otherwise, if it be a ministerial act.

49. Actus legis nemini est damnosus. (2 INST. 287.)—An act of the law is prejudicial to no one.

50. Actus legis nemini facit injuriam. (5 COKE, 116.)—An act of the law injures no one.

51. Actus legitimi non recipiunt modum. (HOB. 153.)—Legitimate actions require no qualifications.

52. Actus me invito factus, non est meus actus. (BRACK. 101.)—An act done without my consent is not my act.

53. Actus non facit reum, nisi mens sit rea. (3 INST. 107.)—An act itself does not make one guilty, unless done with guilty intent.

54. Actus repugnum non potest in esse produci. (PLOW. 355.)—A repugnant act cannot be brought into being.

55. Actus servi in iis quibus opera ejus, cummunitur adhibita est, actus domini habetur.

(LOFFT, 227.)—The act of a servant in which he is usually employed, is considered the act of his master.

56. Additio probat minoritatem. (4. INST. 80.)—An addition proves inferiority.

57. Ad ea quæ frequentius accidunt jura adaptantur. (2. INST. 137.)—Laws are adapted to cases which most frequently occur.

58. Adjournamentum est ad diem dicere seu diem dare. (4. INST. 27.)—An adjournment is to appoint a day or to give a day.

59. Admiralitas jurisdictionem non habet super iis quæ communi lege dirimuntur. (LOFFT, 479.)—An admiralty court has no jurisdiction over those questions which are determined by the common law.

60. Ad officium justiciariorum spectat, uni cuique coram eis placitanti justitiam exhibere. (2. INST. 451.)—It is the duty of justices to administer justice to every one seeking it from him.

61. Ad proximum antecedens fiat relatio, nisi impediatur sententia. (JENK. CENT. 185.)—The antecedent refers to the next relative, unless it obstructs the sentence.

62. Ad quæstionem facti non respondent judices; ad quæstionem juris non respondent juratores. (COKE, LITT. 295.)—To questions of fact judges do not answer; to questions of law the jury do not answer.

63. Ad quæstiones legis judices, et non juratores respondent. (7 MASS. 279.)—Judges, and not juries, respond to questions of law.

64. Ad recte docendum oportet, primum inquirere nomina, quia rerum cognitio a nominibus rerum dependet. (COKE, LITT. 68.)—In order rightly to comprehend a thing, enquire first into the names, for a right knowledge of things depends upon their names.

65. Ad tristem partem strenua est suspicio. (TAYLER, 4.)—Suspicion rests strongly on the unfortunate side.

66. Adversus periculum naturalis ratio permittit se defendere. (LOFFT, 369.)—Natural reason allows one to defend himself against danger.

67. Ædificare in tuo proprio solo non licet quod alteri noceat. (3 INST. 201.)—It is not lawful to build upon your own land so as to injure that of others.

68. Ædificatum solo, solo cedit. (COKE, LITT. 4. a.)—That which is built upon the land goes with the land.

69. Ædificia solo cedunt. (FLETA, 3. 2. 12.)—Buildings pass with a grant of land.

70. Æquitas agit in personam. (4. BOUV. INST. N. 3733.)—Equity acts upon the person.

71. Æquitas casibus medetur. (LOFFT, 499.)—Equity relieves against accidents.

72. Æquitas defectus supplet. (LOFFT, 500.)—Equity supplies defects.

73. Æquitas erroribus medetur. (LOFFT, 498.)—Equity remedies errors.

74. Æquitas est correctio legis generaliter latae, qua parte deficit. (PLOWD. 375.)—Equity is the correction of law, when too general, in the part in which it is defective.

75. Æquitas est correctio quædam legi adhibita, quia ab ea abest aliquid propter generalem sine exceptione comprehensionem. (PLOWD. 467.)—Equity is a certain correction applied to law, because on account of its general comprehensiveness, without an exception something is absent from it.

76. Æquitas est perfecta quædam ratio quæ jus scriptum interpretatur et emendat; nulla scriptura comprehensa, sed sola ratione consistens. (COKE, LITT. 24.)—Equity is a kind of perfect reason which interprets and amends the written law; comprehended in no code, but consistent with reason alone.

77. Æquitas est quasi equalitas. (COKE, LITT. 24.)—Equity is as it were equality.

78. Æquitas ex lege generaliter lata aliquid excipit. (PLOWD. 362.)—Equity admits an exception from a generally enacted law.

79. Æquitas ignorantie opitulatur, oscitantie non item. (PLOWD. 84.)—Equity assists ignorance, but not carelessness.

80. Æquitas in eum qui vult summo jure agere, summum jus intendit. (PLOWD. 340.)—

Equity strains the utmost point of law toward the person who wishes to act according to the strictness of the law.

81. Æquitas in paribus causis paria jura desiderat. (PLOWD. 385.)—Equity in like cases requires like laws.

82. Æquitas jurisdictione non confundit. (PLOWD. 393.)—Jurisdiction is not confounded by equity.

83. Æquitas liberationi et seizinæ favet. (LOFFT, 536.)—Equity favors deliverance and seisin.

84. Æquitas naturam rei non mutat. (LOFFT, 536.)—Equity changes not the manner of things.

85. Æquitas neminem juvat cum injuria alterius. (LOFFT, 397.)—Equity assists no person to the injury of another.

86. Æquitas nil statuit, nisi in partes. (LOFFT, 383.)—Equity determines nothing except toward the parties.

87. Æquitas nomine pœnæ constitutis remedium ex æquo et bono præstat. (LOFFT, 495.)—Equity constitutes a remedy to things which have been appointed, under the name of punishment, agreeable to what is just and good.

88. Æquitas non facit jus, sed juri auxiliatur. (LOFFT, 379.)—Equity does not make law, but assists law.

89. Æquitas non medetur defectu eorum quæ jure positivo requisita alium. (LOFFT, 369.)—

Equity does not supply the defects of those things which are required by positive law.

90. Æquitas non sinit ut eandem rem duplici via simul quis persequatur. (FRANCIS, 11.)—Equity will not allow a double satisfaction to be given

91. Æquitas non supplet ea quæ in manu orantis esse possunt. (LOFFT, 391.)—Equity does not supply those things which are within the applicant's grasp.

92. Æquitas non tenetur adjuvare, ubi non est nodus dignus vindice. (LOFFT, 392.)—Equity will not assist unless the occasion renders it necessary.

93. Æquitas non vaga atque incerta est, sed terminos habet atque limites præfinitas. (LOFFT, 375.)—Equity is not vague and uncertain, but has determined boundaries and limits.

94. Æquitas non vult res novas atque inusitatas inducere. (LOFFT, 376.)—Equity does not incline to introduce new and unusual things.

95. Æquitas nunquam contravenit legis.
—Equity never contradicts the law.

96. Æquitas nunquam liti ancillatur ubi remedium potest dare. (LOFFT, 501.)—Equity is not the handmaid of strife when she can give a remedy.

97. Æquitas opitulatur ubi pensioni damni locus est. (LOFFT, 503.)—Equity assists when there is room for a compensation of a loss.

98. Æquitas pars legis Angliæ. (LOFFT, 497.)
Equity is a part of the English law.

99. Æquitas rei oppignoratæ redemptionibus favet. (LOFFT, 386.)—Equity favors the redemption of a thing in pawn.

100. Æquitas rem ipsam intuetur de forma et circumstantiis minus anxia. (FRANCIS, 13.)—Equity does not regard the form and circumstance, but rather the substance of the act.

101. Æquitas sequitur legem. (1 STORY, EQ. JUR. 64.)—Equity follows the law.

102. Æquitas supervacua odit. (LOFFT, 382.)
Equity abhors superfluous things.

103. Æquitas uxoribus, liberis, creditoribus maxime favet. (LOFFT, 372.)—Equity favors wives, children, and creditors.

104. Æquitas veritatis filia, bonitatis et justitiæ soror. (LOFFT, 637.)—Equity is the daughter of truth, and the sister of goodness and justice.

105. Æquitas vult omnibus modis ad veritatem pervenire. (LOFFT, 380.)—Equity desires by all means to arrive at the truth.

106. Æquitas vult spoliatos, vel deceptos, vel lapsos ante omnia restitui. (LOFFT, 374.)—Equity desires the spoiled, the deceived, and the ruined, above all things, to have restitution.

107. Æquum et bonum, est lex legum. (HOB. 244.)—What is just and right is the law of laws.

108. Ær, lux, aqua profluens, feræ nulli pro-

pria, omnibus communia. (LOFFT, 179.)—Air, light, running water, and wild beasts, are the property of none, but are common to all.

109. Æs debitorem leve; graviorem inimicum facit. (TAYLER, 22.)—A small debt makes a debtor; a large one an enemy.

110. Æstimatio præteriti delicti ex postremo facto nunquam crescit. (BAC. MAX. 8.)—The estimation of a committed crime never increases by a subsequent fact.

111. Affectio tua nomen imponit operi tuo. (COKE, LITT. 177.)—Your motive gives a name to your act.

112. Affectus punitur licet non sequatur effectus. (9 COKE, 57.)—The intention should be punished, although the consequence do not follow.

113. Affines mei affinis non est mihi affinis. (SHELFORD, M. & D., 174.)—A connection of my connection is not a connection of mine.

114. Affinitas dicitur, cum duæ cognationes, inter se divisæ, per nuptias copulantur, et altera ad alterius fines accedit. (COKE, LITT. 157.)—It is called affinity when two families, divided from one another, are united by marriage, and one of them approaches the confines of another.

115. Affirmanti, non neganti, incumbit probatio. (WHART. 30.)—He who affirms, not he who denies, must bear the burden of proof.

116. Affirmantis est probatio. (9 CUSH. 535.)—He who affirms must prove.

117. Affirmativum negativum implicat. (WHART. 30.)—An affirmative implies a negative.

118. Agentes et consentientes, pari pœna plectentur. (5 COKE, 80.)—Parties both acting and consenting, are liable to the same punishment.

119. Agri ab universis per vices occupantur; arva per annos mutant. (TAYLER, 24.)—Commons are used by all in turn; arable lands change with years.

120. Alea et ganea res turpissimæ. (LOFFT, 207.)—The dice and brothel are infamous things.

121. Alienatio rei præfertur juri accrescendi. (COKE, LITT. 185. a.)—Alienation is favored by the law rather than accumulation.

122. Alienation pending a suit is void. (1 JOHNS. CH. 566).

566. Erubescit lex filios castigare parentes.

(8 COKE, 116.)—The law blushes when children correct their parents.

567. Est aliquid quod non oportet etiam si licet; quicquid vero non licet certe non oportet. (HOB. 159.)—There is that which is not proper, even though permitted; but whatever is not permitted, is certainly not proper.

568. Est autem jus publicum et privatum quod ex naturalibus præceptis aut gentium, aut civilibus est collectum; et quod in jure scripto jus appellatur, id in lege Angliæ rectum esse dicitur. (COKE, LITT. 558. a.)—Public and private law is that which is collected from natural precepts, on the one hand of nations, on the other of citizens; and that which in the civil law is called JUS, that in the law of England is said to be right.

569. Est autem vis legem simulans. (2 BOU. 125.)—Violence may also put on the mask of the law.

570. Est boni judicis ampliare jurisdictionem. (GILB. 14.)—It is the part of a good judge to extend the jurisdiction.

571. Est ipsorum legislatorum tanquam viva vox; rebus et non verbis legem imponimus. (10 COKE, 101.)—The utterance of legislators themselves is like the living voice; we impose law upon things not upon words.

572. Est quiddam perfectius in rebus licitis.

(HOB. 159.)—There is something more than perfect in things allowed.

573. Estoveria sunt ardendi, arundi, construendi, et claudendi. (13 COKE, 68.)—Estovers are for burning, ploughing, building and inclosing.

574. Est une maxime en nostre ley parols ont plea.—There is a maxim in our law, words make the plea.

575. Et est pactio duorum plurumque in idem placitum consensus. (HALK. 43.)—The meeting of the minds of two or more in an agreement makes a contract.

576. Eum qui nocentem infamat, non est æquum et bonum ob eam rem condemnari; delicta enim nocentium nota esse oportet et expedit. (DIG. 47. 10. 17.)—It is not just and proper that he who speaks ill of a bad man should be condemned on that account; for it is fitting and expedient that the crimes of bad men should be known.

577. Eventus est qui ex causa sequitur, et dicitur eventus quia ex causis evenit. (9 COKE, 81.)—An event is that which follows from the cause; and is called an event, because it arises from causes.

578. Eventus varios res nova semper habet. (COKE, LITT. 379. a.)—A new matter always induces various results.

579. Every man is presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of his own voluntary acts. (1 GR. EV. 18).

607. Exceptio firmat regulam in contrari-

um. (BAC. APH. 17.)—The exception affirms the rule to be the contrary.

608. Exceptio nulla est versus actionem quæ exceptionem perimit. (JENK. CENT. 106.)—There is no plea against an action which entirely destroys the plea.

609. Exceptio probat regulam de rebus exceptio. (11 COKE, 41.)—An exception proves the rule concerning things not excepted.

610. Exceptio quæ firmat legem, exponit legem. (2 BULS. 189.)—An exception which confirms the law, expounds the law.

611. Exceptio quoque regulam declarat. (BAC. APH. 17.)—The exception also declares the rule.

612. Exceptio semper ultima ponenda est. (9 COKE, 53.)—An exception is always to be put last.

613. Excessit ex ephebis est persona. (RILEY, 114.)—He who comes out of his minority becomes legally a person.

614. Excessivum in jure reprobatur. Excessus in re qualibet jure reprobatur communi. (11 COKE, 44.)—Excess in law is reprehended. Excess in anything is reprehended in common law.

615. Excessus non petita excusatio manifesta fit. ()—He who excuses before he is accused establishes his own guilt.

616. Excommunicatio minor est, per quam quis a sacramentorum participatione conscientia vel sententia arceatur; major est, quæ non solum a sacramentorum verum etiam fidelium communione excludit, et ab omni actu legitimo separat aut dividit. (COKE, LITT. 133. a.)

—The LESSER excommunication is that by which a man, either by conscience or sentence is expelled from participation in the sacraments; the GREATER is where he is not only excluded from participation in the sacraments, but from all community with the faithful, and from every legitimate act.

617. Excommunicato interdicitur omnes actus legitimus, ita quod agere non potest, nec aliquem convenire, licet ipse ab aliis passit convenire. (COKE, LITT. 133. a.)—Every legitimate act is forbidden an excommunicated person; he cannot act or sue by any person, although he himself may be sued by others.

618. Excusat aut extenuat delictum in capitalibus, quod non operatur idem in civilibus. (BAC. MAX. 7.)—A wrong, in capital cases, is excused or palliated, which would not be so treated in civil cases.

619. Excusatur quis quod clameum non apposuerit, ut si toto tempore litigii fuit ultra mare quacunque occasione. (COKE, LITT. 260. a.)—He is excused who does not bring his claim, if, during the whole period in which it should have been brought, he has been beyond sea on any occasion.

620. Executio est executio juris secundum iudicium. (3 INST. 212.)—Execution is the execution of the law according to the judgment.

621. Executio est finis et fructus legis. (COKE, LITT. 289. b.)—Execution is the end and fruit of the laws.

622. Executio juris non facit injuriam. (2 ROL. 301.)—The execution of the process of the law does no injury.

623. Exempla illustrent, non restringunt, legem. (COKE, LITT. 24. a.)—Examples illustrate, not restrain, the law.

624. Exempla non restringunt regulam, sed loquuntur de casibus crebrioribus. (TRAY. 201.)—Examples do not restrict the rule, but speak of the cases which most frequently occur.

625. Exilium est patriæ privatio, natalis soli mutatio, legum nativarum amissio. (7 COKE, 20.)—Exile is a privation of country, a change of natal soil, a loss of native laws.

626. Exitus acta probat; finis, non pugna coronat. (WHART. 366.)—The conclusion proves the fact; the termination, not the fight, crowns the victory.

627. Expedit reipublicæ ne sua re quis male utatur. (2 BOU. 126.)—It is for the interest of the state that no one should misuse his own possessions.

628. Expedit reipublicæ ut sit finis litium. (COKE, LITT. 303. b.)—It is for the public good that there be an end of litigation.

629. Experientia per varios actus legem facit. Magistra rerum experientia. (COKE, LITT. 60. a.)—Experience by various acts makes law. Experience is the mistress of things.

630. Expertorum dictum nunquam transit in rem judicatam. (BON. TR. PR. §74.)—The testimony of experts should not be disregarded in judicial proceedings.

631. Expositio, quæ ex visceribus causæ nascitur, est aptissima et fortissima in lege. (10 COKE, 24.)—That exposition which springs from the vitals of a cause, is the fittest and most powerful in law.

632. Expressa nocent, non expressa non nocent. (CAL. LEX.)—Things expressed do harm; things not expressed do no harm.

633. Expressa non prosunt quæ non expressa proderunt. (4 COKE, 73.)—Things expressed do no good, which, not expressed, do no harm.

634. Expressio eorum quæ tacite insunt, nihil operatur. (4 COKE, 73.)—The expressing of those things which are implied, operates nothing.

635. Expressio unius personæ vel rei est exclusio alterius. (COKE, LITT. 210. a.)—The express mention of one person or thing is the exclusion of another.

809. Idem est non probari et non esse; non deficit jus, sed probatio. (2 BOU. 129.)—What does not appear, and what does not exist are the same; it is not the defect of the law, but want of proof.

810. Idem est scire aut scire debet aut potuisse. (2 BOU. 129.)—To be able to know is the same as to be obliged to know.

811. Idem semper antecedenti proximo refertur. (COKE, LITT. 385. b.)—THE SAME always relates to its next antecedent.

812. Identitas vera colligitur ex multitudine signorum. (BAC. MAX. 24.)—The true identity is collected from a multitude of signs.

813. If an affirmative statute, which introduces a new law, direct a thing to be done in a certain manner, that thing shall not, even though there are no negative words, be done in any other manner. (12 ABB. P. R. 35. 36).

814. Ignorantia eorum quæ quis scire tenetur non excusat. (HALE, PL. CR. 42.)—Ignorance of those things which one is bound to know does not excuse.

815. Ignorantia facti excusat; ignorantia juris non excusat. (2 COKE, 3.)—Ignorance of fact excuses; ignorance of law does not excuse.

816. Ignorantia judicis est calamitas innocentis. (2 INST. 591.)—The ignorance of the judge is the misfortune of the innocent.

817. Ignorantia juris sui non præjudicat juri. (LOFFT, 552.)—Ignorance of one's own law is not prejudicial to that law.

818. Ignorantia legum neminem excusat; omnes enim præsumuntur eas nosse quibus omnes consentiant. (LOFFT, 10.)—Ignorance of the law excuses no one; for all are presumed to know those things to which all consent.

819. Ignorantis terminis ignoratur et ars. (COKE, LITT. 2. a.)—The terms being unknown, the act is also unknown.

820. Ignoscitur ei qui sanguinem suum qualiter redemptum voluit. (1 BLACK. COM. 131.)—The law holds him excused, who chose that his blood should be redeemed in any way.

821. Il n'est pars permis decouferer, ou de negocier avec les enemis de l'etat. (TAYLER, 238.)—It is not permitted to disclose secrets, or to negotiate with the enemies of the state.

822. Ille honore dignus est, qui se, suæ legibus patriæ, et non sine magno labore et industria, reddidit versatum. (TAYLER, 237.)—He deserves honor, who has with much labor and industry rendered himself familiar with the laws of the country.

823. Illud quod alias licitum non est, necessitas facit licitum, et necessitas inducit privilegium quod jure privat. (10 COKE, 61.)—That which is not otherwise lawful, necessity makes lawful, and necessity makes a privilege which supersedes law.

824. Illud quod alteri unitur extinguitur neque amplius per se vacare licet. (GODOLPH 169.)—That which is united to another is extinguished, nor can it be any more independent.

825. Imaginaria venditio non est pretio accedente. (HALK. 57.)—It is not an imaginary sale at which the price is paid.

826. Immobilia situm sequuntur. (2 KENT, COM. 67.)—Immovables follow the law of the place where they are situated.

827. Imperii majestas est tutelæ salus. (COKE, LITT. 64. b.)—The majesty of the empire is its safety and protection.

1158. Law respecteth possibility of things. (FINCH, LAW. 1. 3. 40).

1159. Law respecteth the bonds of nature. (FINCH, LAW. 1. 3. 29).

1160. Le contrat fait la loi. (2 BOU. 135.)
—The contract makes the law.

1161. Le ley de Dieu et le ley de terre sont tout un, et l'un et l'autre preferre et favour le common et publique bien del terre. (KEIL. 191.)—The law of God and the law of the land are all one; and both prefer and favor the common and public good of the land.

1162. Le ley est le plus haut enheritance que le roy ad, car par le ley, il mesme et tous ses sujets sont rules, et si le ley ne fuit, nul roy ne nul enheritance serra. (2 BOU. 135.)—The law is the highest inheritance that the king has, for by the law both he and all his subjects are ruled, and if there were no law, there would be neither king nor inheritance.

1163. Le salut du peuple est la supreme loi. (BR. 1.)—The safety of the people is the supreme law.

1164. Legatos violare contra jus gentium est. (WHART. 561.)—To do violence to ambassadors is contrary to the law of nations.

1165. Legatum morte testatoris tantum confirmatur, sicut donatio inter vivos traditione sola. (DYER, 143.)—A legacy is confirmed by the death of the testator, as much as a gift from a living person is by delivery alone.

1166. Legatus regis vice fungitur a quo destinatur, et honorandus est sicut ille cujus vicem gerit. (12 COKE, 17.)—An ambassador fills the place of the king by whom he is sent, and is to be honored as he whose place he fills.

1167. Legem enim contractus dat. (22 WEND. N. Y. 215. 233.)—The contract makes the law.

1168. Legem terræ amittentes perpetuam in famiæ notam inde merito incurrunt. (3 INST. 221.)—Those who do not keep the law of the land, thence justly incur the perpetual brand of infamy.

1169. Leges Angliæ sunt tripartitæ: jus commune consuetudines, ac decreta comitiorum. (2 BOU. 135.)—The laws of England are three-fold: common law, customs, and decrees of parliament.

1170. Leges et constitutiones futuris certum est dare formam negotiis non ad facta præterita revocare, nisi nominatim. (TAYLER, 287.)—Laws and constitutions are made, to give form to future transactions, and may not be referred to matters already past and terminated.

1171. Leges figendi et refigendi consuetudo est periculosissima. (4 COKE, PREF.)—The custom of making and unmaking laws is most dangerous.

1172. Leges humanæ nascuntur, vivunt, et moriuntur. (7 COKE, 25.)—Human laws are born, live, and die.

1173. Leges naturæ perfectissimæ sunt, et immutabiles; humani vero juris conditio semper in infinitum decurrit, et nihil est in eo quod perpetuo stare possit. (7 COKE, 25.)—The laws of nature are perfect and immutable; but the condition of human law tends always to infinity, and there is nothing in it that can continue perpetually.

1174. Leges non verbis sed rebus sunt impositæ. (10 COKE, 101.)—Laws are imposed on things, not on words.

1175. Leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant. (2 ROL. 410.)—Later laws abrogate prior contrary laws.

1176. Leges quæ retrospectiunt raro, et magna cum cautione sunt adhibendæ. (TAYLER, 288.)

—Retrospective laws are rare, and should be received with great caution.

1177. Leges suum ligent latorem. (FLETA, 1. 17. 11.)—Laws should bind those who make them.

1178. Leges vigilantibus, non dormientibus subveniunt. (5 JOHNS. CH. 122. 145.)—Laws aid the vigilant, not the negligent.

1179. Legibus sumptis desinentibus, lege naturæ utendum est. (2 ROL. 298.)—Laws imposed by the state failing, we must act by the law of nature.

1180. Legis constructio non facit injuriam. (COKE, LITT. 183. a.)—The construction of the law does no harm.

1181. Legis minister non tenetur, in executione officii sui, fugere aut retrocedere. (BRANCH, PR.)—The minister of the law is bound in the execution of his office, neither to flee nor retreat.

1182. Legis virtus hæc est; imperare, vetare, permittere, punire. (CAL. LEX.)—The virtue of the law is this; to command, forbid, permit, and punish.

1183. Legislatorum est viva vox, rebus et non verbis, legem imponere. (10 COKE, 101.)—The voice of legislators is a living voice, to impose laws on things, not on words.

1184. Legitime imperanti parere necesse est.

(JENK. CENT. 120.)—It is necessary to obey one who legitimately commands.

1185. Legum omnes servi sumus, ut liberi esse possumus. (TAYLER, 289.)—We are all slaves to the law, in order that we may become free.

1186. Les fictions naissent de la loi, et non la loi des fictions. (2 BOU. 136.)—Fictions arise from the law, and not the law from fictions.

1187. Les lois extremes dans le bien font naitre le mal extreme. (TAYLER, 290.)—Laws extreme in good, produce extreme in evil.

1188. Les lois ne se chargent de punir que les actions exterieures. (MONTES. ES. DES LOIS, 12. 11.)—Laws do not undertake to punish other than outward actions.

1189. Lestestm doivent rien tesm fors ceo que ils soient de certain, s. ceo que ils veront ou oyront. (BEST, EV. 865.)—Witnesses should testify to nothing unless they are certain of it, that is, unless they have seen or heard it.

1190. Levis exceptio excusat a spolio. (TRAY. 308.)—A slight defense excuses from the consequences of a plunder.

1191. Lex æquitate gaudet; appetit perfectum; est norma recti. (JENK. CENT. 36.)—The law delights in equity; it covets perfection; it is a rule of right.

1192. Lex aliquando sequitur æquitatem. (3 WILS. 119.)—Law sometimes follows equity.

1193. Lex Angliæ est lex misericordiæ. (2 INST. 815.)—The law of England is a law of mercy.

1194. Lex Angliæ nunquam matris sed semper patris conditionem imitari partum judicat. (COKE, LITT. 123. a.)—The law of England rules that the offspring shall always follow the condition of the father; never that of the mother.

1195. Lex Angliæ nunquam sine parlamento mutare non potest. (2 INST. 219.)—The law of England cannot be changed except by parliament.

1196. Lex Angliæ non patitur absurdum. (9 COKE, 22.)—The law of England does not suffer an absurdity.

1197. Lex beneficialis rei consimili remedium præstat. (2 INST. 689.)—A beneficial law affords a remedy in a similar case.

1198. Lex certa esto poena certa et crimini idonea, et legibus præfinita. (LOFFT, 117.)—Let the law be certain; let the punishment be certain, and adequate to the crime, and previously decided by the laws.

1199. Lex citius tolerare vult privatum damnum quam publicum malum. (COKE, LITT. 152. b.)—The law should rather tolerate a private loss than a public evil.

1200. Lex contra id quod præsumit, probationem non recipit. (LOFFT, 573.)—The law admits no proof against that which it presumes.

1201. Lex de futuro, judex de præterito. (2 BOU. 136.)—The law provides for the future; the judge for the past.

1202. Lex deficere non potest in justitia exhibenda. (COKE, LITT. 197. b.)—The law ought not to fail in dispensing justice.

1203. Lex dilationes semper exhorret. (2 INST. 240.)—The law always abhors delays.

1204. Lex est ab æterno. (JENK. CENT. 34.)—The law is from the everlasting.

1205. Lex est anima regis, et rex est anima legis. (BRANCH, PR.)—The law is the soul of the king, and the king is the soul of the law.

1206. Lex est dictamen rationis. (JENK. CENT. 117.)—Law is the dictate of reason.

1207. Lex est exercitus judicum tutissimus ductor. (2 INST. 526.)—The law is the safest leader of the army of judges.

1208. Lex est norma recti. (2 BOU. 136.)—Law is a rule of right.

1209. Lex est ratio summa, quæ jubet quæ sunt utilia et necessaria, et contraria prohibet. (COKE, LITT. 319. b.)—Law is the highest reason, which commands those things that are useful and necessary, and forbids what is contrary thereto.

1210. Lex est sanctio sancta, jubens honesta, et prohibens contraria. (2 INST. 587.)—The law is a sacred sanction, commanding what is honorable, and forbidding what is contrary.

1211. Lex est tutissima cassis; sub clypeo legis nemo decipitur. (2 INST. 56.)—Law is the safest helmet; under the shield of the law no one is deceived.

1212. Lex facit regem. (LOFFT, 8.)—Law makes the king.

1213. Lex favet doti. (JENK. CENT. 50.)—The law favors dower.

1214. Lex fingit ubi subsistit æquitas. (BRANCH, PR.)—The law feigns where equity subsists.

1215. Lex fingit ubi substitit æquitas. (HALK. 80.)—The law feigns where equity withstands.

1216. Lex hæreditates liberas esse vult non in perpetuum astrictas. (LOFFT, 642.)—The law wishes inheritance to be free to those not strictly bound for all time.

1217. Lex injusta non est lex. (LOFFT, 98.)—An unjust law is not a law.

1218. Lex intendit vicinum vicini facta scire. (COKE, LITT. 78. b.)—The law presumes one neighbor to know the actions of another.

1219. Lex judicat de rebus necessario faciendis quasi re ipsa factis. (WHART. 570.)—The law judges of those things which must necessarily be done, as if actually done.

1220. Lex mercatoria est lex terræ. (TAYLER, 294.)—The mercantile law is the law of the land.

1221. Lex necessitatis est lex temporis, i.e., instantis. (HOB. 159.)—The law of necessity is the law of time, that is, of the present.

1222. Lex neminem cogit ad vana seu inutilia peragenda. (5 COKE, 21.)—The law forces no one to do vain or useless things.

1223. Lex neminem cogit ostendere quod nescere præsumitur. (LOFFT, 569.)—The law obliges no one to show what he is presumed not to know.

1224. Lex nemini operatur iniquum, nemini facit injuriam. (JENK. CENT. 22.)—The law works harm to no one, and does no one an injury.

1225. Lex nil facit frustra; nil jubet frustra. (3 BULS. 279.)—The law does nothing vainly; commands nothing vainly.

1226. Lex non a rege est violanda. (JENK. CENT. 7.)—The law should not be violated by the king.

1227. Lex non cogit ad impossibilia. (COKE, LITT. 92. a.)—The law forces not to impossibilities.

1228. Lex non consilia nuda, sed actus apertos respicit. (LOFFT, 123.)—The law regards not mere intentions, but open acts.

1229. Lex non deficit in justitia exhibenda. (JENK. CENT. 31.)—The law does not fail in showing justice.

1230. Lex non exacte definit, sed arbitrio boni viri permittit. (TAYLER, 294.)—The law does not define exactly, but leaves to the decision of a good man.

1231. Lex non favet delicatorum votis. (9 COKE, 58.)—The law favors not the wishes of the dainty.

1232. Lex non intendit aliquid impossibile. (12 COKE, 89.)—The law does not intend anything impossible.

1233. Lex non patitur fractiones et divisiones statutum. (BRANCH, PR.)—The law suffers no fractions and divisions of statutes.

1234. Lex non præcipit inutilia; quia inutilis labor stultus. (COKE, LITT. 197. b.)—The law commands not useless things; because useless labor is foolish.

1235. Lex non requirit verificare quod apparet curiæ. (9 COKE, 54.)—The law does not require that which is apparent to the court to be verified.

1236. Lex orbis, insanis, et pauperibus protutore atque parente est. (LOFFT, 352.)—The law is the guardian and father of orphans, the insane, and the poor.

1237. Lex plus laudatur quando ratione probata. (LITT. EPIL.)—The law is the more praised when it is consonant to reason.

1238. Lex posterior derogat priori. (MACK. CIV. LAW, 5.)—The later law annuls the earlier.

1239. Lex prospicit, non respicit. (JENK. CENT. 284.)—The law looks forward, not backward.

1240. Lex punit mendacium. (JENK. CENT. 15.)—The law punishes a lie.

1241. Lex pure pœnalis obligat tantum ad pœnam, non item ad culpam; lex pœnalis mixta et ad culpam obligat, et ad pœnam. (TAYLER, 294.)—The merely penal law binds only as to penalty, not as to fault; the mixed penal law binds both to fault and to penalty.

1242. Lex rejicit superflua, pugnancia, incongrua. (JENK. CENT. 133.)—The law rejects superfluous, contradictory, and incongruous things.

1243. Lex respicit æquitatem. (14 Q. B. 504. 511. 512.)—Law regards equity.

1244. Lex scripta si cesset id custodiri oportet quod moribus et consuetudine inductum est et si qua in re hoc defecerit tunc id quod proximum et consequens ei est, et si id non appareat tunc jus quo urbs Romana utitur servari oportet. (7 COKE, 19.)—If the written law be silent, that which is drawn from manners and customs should be observed; and if in that anything is defective, then that which is next and analogous to it; and if that does not appear, then that law which Rome used should be followed.

1245. Lex semper dabit remedium. (3 BOU. INST. 2411.)—Law will always give a remedy.

1246. Lex semper intendit quod convenit rationi. (COKE, LITT. 78. b.)—The law always intends what is agreeable to reason.
